Commentary

The market is still quite fragile with many economic numbers and a steady stream of political discussions each day, causing markets to react quickly in various directions and depth given the scope of the information being revealed. The month of April as well as year to date has edged out some positive monthly returns. Economic conditions are continuing to improve, double digit unemployment in the U.S. is likely to keep fiscal and monetary stimulus in place for some time to come. The low levels of interest rates around the world are proving to provide significant fuel to propel the prices of financial assets and some commodities. As Canadian and U.S. government fixed income yields continue to remain at very low absolute and relative rates, this should continue to be very supportive to the strong dividend paying companies.

Overall confidence in the U.S. financial system continues to improve as some of the larger U.S. Banks continue to repay government funds and raise private capital. However, credit expansion through lending is still very sluggish and this will likely have the effect of dampening the recovery as many small businesses in particular have not been able to access capital. Concerns over commercial real estate and a still weak U.S. housing market continue to weigh on the prospect of a more robust recovery. A surprisingly strong housing market has continued to provide support to the Canadian economy.

Attractive dividend yields, low historic valuations and significant option premiums available in the marketplace continue to bode well for the portfolio. The Manager continues to actively manage the relative weightings of the companies held within the portfolio.
